

VISITORS

SOLUTION

For being uncharted, Gilligan's Island sure had a lot of visitors, yet none of them told the outside world about the castaways' plight and location. Perhaps there was more than just bad luck keeping them lost. Match up the visitors with the reasons they didn't (or couldn't) bring rescuers to the island, and you will see what kept those poor people stranded for three seasons. (This puzzle is based on actual plots from the episodes, not on wordplay. Most connections can be inferred from the descriptions.)

The letters that are not crossed out spell:
THE WRITERS

|                          |   |  |   |   |
|--------------------------|---|--|---|---|
| Big Game Hunter          | • |  | • | Unable to give useful directions                |
| Broadway Producer        | • |  | • | Wanted to steal Ginger's career                 |
| Cosmonauts               | • |  | • | Hit head on rock returning on "reverse tsunami" |
| Eva Grubb                | • |  | • | Stole idea for "Hamlet the Musical"             |
| Jungle Boy               | • |  | • | Got turned into a cat by his own machine        |
| Mad Scientist            | • |  | • | Covered up rules violation                      |
| Robot                    | • |  | • | Feared punishment for trying to kill Gilligan   |
| Surfer                   | • |  | • | Had poor language skills                        |
| "Take a Dare" Contestant | • |  | • | Feared competition with a girl band             |
| The Mosquitoes           | • |  | • | Embarrassed their splashdown was off target     |
| Wrongway Feldman         | • |  | • | Message demagnetized by Gilligan's rabbit foot  |